

Letter from Mabel Hubbard Bell to Alexander Graham Bell, March 29, 1909, with transcript

Letter from Mrs. Alexander Graham Bell to Dr. Alexander Graham Bell. 1331 Connecticut Avenue. Washington, D. C. (March 29, 1909.) My dear Alec:

Of course you found your Ottawa trip fatiguing but what an experience! what delight to move large audiences of worth-while men to enthusiasm! That is one of the things you can do as can few men, and you must enjoy the doing of it. And of course I am sure you accomplished a lot even if it is not immediately apparent. What does the enclosed from this morning's Post mean?

I have nothing much to tell you. Mamma is coming home today, Daisy is getting along well. She still has a slight afternoon rise of temperature, but she is gaining daily, has a good appetite and Barbara testifies to the excellence of her milk.

I fear it will be rather lonely for Kathleen without us all, and with Casey away all day, give her my love. I wrote her twice but have not heard from her since I wrote. I wonder if my letters reached her.

Much love Alec darling to you and Casey and Douglas, and drink plenty of water.

Your loving, Mabel. March 29, 1909.
